You know, pandas usually nap a lot during the day.
Liu Xiaoxue: Right, and when they are not sleeping, they spend most of their time eating.
Liu Xiaoming: What a relaxing life!
Liu Xiaoxue: Mom, can you take a picture of me with these two giant pandas?

课文 4

Today, I took Xiaoxue and Xiaoming to the zoo. The Beijing Zoo is one of the most famous zoos in China and is home to a wide variety of animals. Of course, the giant pandas are favorites among both adults and children. Every day, many visitors flock to the Panda House, bringing their cameras to take photos of these adorable animals. The zoo opens at 7:30 a.m. and closes at 7:00 p.m. In winter, there are fewer visitors than in summer, so it closes an hour earlier. If it's your first time visiting Beijing, a trip to the Beijing Zoo with your family is definitely a great choice.

Lesson 17 我要多向认真的人学习

课文 1

Liu Xiaoxue: Let's stop here. We've already reached Ms. Li's office.
Classmate: You go in. I'll wait for you by the stairs. I'm scared to see Ms. Li.
Liu Xiaoxue: What's the matter?
Classmate: I've made quite a few mistakes recently, and I'm afraid Ms. Li will be upset.
Liu Xiaoxue: You're overthinking it. Everyone makes mistakes.
Classmate: But I got some simple things wrong. Ms. Li must think I'm not careful.
Liu Xiaoxue: Some people, even though they're very smart, still make mistakes on simple tasks because they think the tasks are easy and don't take them seriously.
Classmate: That sounds just like me. From now on, I'll learn from people who are careful.

课文 2

Bai Jiayue: Has the sun risen in the west? I have been seeing you in the library almost every day lately.
Chen Tianzhong: What's so strange about that? I come here to study.
Bai Jiayue: Why are you still studying in the library? Everyone else is busy looking for jobs!
Chen Tianzhong: I'm not ready to start working yet—I want to keep studying, and my parents agree with me. But I haven't decided what to study, so I'm coming here to see what's available.
Bai Jiayue: Don't you like computers? You could check out some books about them.
Chen Tianzhong: Good idea. I remember seeing some computer books in that room—I'll go and have a look.

课文 3

Li Wen: Tianzhong, why is your phone off?
Chen Tianzhong: My phone ran out of battery. Is something wrong?
Li Wen: I saw Jiayue the day before yesterday, and she told me you're planning to continue your studies abroad.
Chen Tianzhong: Yes, but I haven't decided what to study yet, let alone which country to go to.
Li Wen: Why not go to China to study Chinese? Big cities like Beijing and Shanghai have many excellent universities and lots of international students.
Chen Tianzhong: Sounds good. I'll check it out online.
Li Wen: I can recommend a few useful websites to you.

课文 4

My university life is about to end, and I've often been asked recently, "What do you want to do after graduation?"—a question that's truly not easy to answer. I've asked several classmates too, and each has chosen a different path. Some want to pursue graduate studies, some plan to study abroad, and others have decided to look for a job first. I believe only by figuring out what you truly enjoy can you make the best decision. For me, however, finding the answer to "what I truly enjoy" remains a tough question.

Lesson 18 我学会了包饺子

课文 1

Bai Jiayue: I'm going to spend Spring Festival in China. I'm so excited!
Li Wen: This is the first time I've invited a foreign friend to my home for the Spring Festival. I'm really happy too.
Bai Jiayue: How do you usually celebrate the festival?
Li Wen: Spring Festival is the most important holiday in China. We usually go back home and celebrate it with our families.
Bai Jiayue: And what do you do with your family?
Li Wen: We make jiaozi while watching the Spring Festival Gala, and we stay up past midnight.
Bai Jiayue: That sounds really fun. How many days off do you get for Spring Festival?
Li Wen: About seven or eight days.

课文 2

Bai Jiayue: Auntie Zhang, Uncle Li—Happy New Year! I brought a gift for you. I hope you like it.
Uncle Li: Thank you, Jiayue. That's very kind of you!
Aunt Zhang: Xiaowen always talks about you. I'm so glad we finally get to meet.
Bai Jiayue: Thank you for having me over.
Uncle Li: There are drinks and bottled water on the table—help yourself to whatever you'd like.
Aunt Zhang: Have a seat and watch some TV for a bit. The jiaozi will be ready soon.
Bai Jiayue: I learned how to make jiaozi from a video. Let me help you make them!

课文 3

Bai Jiayue: Was this photo taken before Li Wen went abroad?
Aunt Zhang: Yes, it was taken at the airport in Beijing when our whole family saw him off.
Bai Jiayue: That was about three or four years ago, right?
Aunt Zhang: Yes, time really flies—it feels like it happened just yesterday.
Bai Jiayue: You must really miss Li Wen, don't you?
Aunt Zhang: When he first left home, it was hard for me to get used to it. If I didn't video chat with him for a few days, I'd miss him terribly.
Bai Jiayue: Well, just one more semester until he graduates. He'll be back soon.

课文 4

What made me happiest during this trip to China was getting to know Li Wen's parents. They showed me photos taken when Li Wen was born and told me many stories about his childhood. In high school, he wanted to study medicine and has worked hard ever since. In his senior year, his outstanding grades earned him the opportunity to study abroad. Through his story, I learned that as long as you persevere, you can achieve your goals. I believe he will go on to accomplish even greater things in the future.
