课文 4

I love watching sporting events, and my favorite is the Olympic Games. The Olympics are the most influential sporting event in the world. From 1896 to 2024, each edition of the Games has attracted a huge number of athletes from around the globe. The first Chinese athlete to take part in the Olympics was Liu Changchun, who competed in the 100 m and 200 m sprint races in 1932. Although he didn't achieve great results, he helped introduce China to the world.

Lesson 10 你明天再把书还给我

课文 1

Classmate: Your math is getting better and better. Could you share your study methods?
Liu Xiaoxue: Nothing special—I just pay close attention in class and take detailed notes.
Classmate: I've seen your notes—they're really clear and well-organized.
Liu Xiaoxue: The questions the teacher writes on the blackboard are all important, so I make sure to write them all down in my notebook.
Classmate: You're absolutely right. I don't really have the habit of taking notes.
Liu Xiaoxue: Notes are really important. I review them once before doing my homework every day.
Classmate: That's such a great method! I'll try it too—hopefully it'll help improve my grades.

课文 2

Classmate: Xiaoxue, how did you do on yesterday's exam?
Liu Xiaoxue: I thought the history exam was a bit difficult. What about you?
Classmate: On the math test, I didn't read the instructions carefully and got several questions wrong. I didn't do very well.
Liu Xiaoxue: There's another exam tomorrow—don't dwell on it too much. Let's focus on reviewing the foreign language for now.
Classmate: I have a few questions about the foreign language homework. Can I ask you for help?
Liu Xiaoxue: Of course! Feel free to ask me anything related to studying.
Liu Xiaoxue: Sorry, I don't know how to solve these questions either. Let's go to Ms. Li's office together and ask her for help.

课文 3

Classmate: Ms. Li, we have a few questions from the textbook that we'd like to ask you.
Ms. Li: Sure, have a seat. Which questions are you struggling with?
Classmate: I don't understand this dialogue on page 5, and Xiaoxue doesn't get it either.
Ms. Li: I went over these sentences in class—let me explain them again.
(Ms. Li explains the questions to the students.)
Classmate: I finally get it now. These questions aren't difficult at all!
Liu Xiaoxue: I understand too. Thank you, Ms. Li.
Ms. Li: There are a few more exercises in this book of mine. Try working on them at home, and return the book to me tomorrow.

课文 4

Dear Sister Jiayue,

How have you been lately? Are you busy these days?

I'm now in my second year of middle school, and my studies are becoming more and more demanding. The year after next, I'll be taking the high school entrance exams. In China, schools generally consist of six years of elementary school, three years of middle school, and three years of high school. My mom says that to get into a good university, you first need to attend a good high school—and to enter a good high school, you need to have strong grades in middle school. That's why I'm working very hard now.

Did you know that, Sister Jiayue? Thanks to your influence, I've started to enjoy photography. Next time you visit Beijing, I'll show you some of the photos I've taken.

Lesson 11 看来我没办法解决这个问题

课文 1

Wang Yixue: What time does the meeting start this afternoon?
Yang Tongle: The manager isn't available this afternoon, so the meeting has been canceled.
Wang Yixue: Then when will it be held?
Yang Tongle: At 10 a.m. the day after tomorrow. The location has been changed to Meeting Room 1. I'm about to send everyone an email.
Wang Yixue: For the meeting, should we use the room's computer or bring our own?
Yang Tongle: Either works.
Wang Yixue: Let's go a bit earlier then—can you help me set up the computer?

课文 2

Wang Yixue: Is the computer set up?
Yang Tongle: It's already set up. Go ahead and turn it on to see if there's any issue.
Wang Yixue: I can't see anything at the moment.
Yang Tongle: Let me check what's wrong... Try again.
Wang Yixue: Now I can see, but there's no sound.
Yang Tongle: How about now?
Wang Yixue: I can hear it now, but it's still too quiet to hear clearly.
Yang Tongle: Looks like I can't fix this problem. We'll have to ask someone else for help.

课文 3

Wang Yixue: Tongle, have you seen Lao Zhang?
Yang Tongle: He didn't come in today. He said he had some family matters to take care of, so he took the day off.
Wang Yixue: Quite a few colleagues are on leave—I'm worried I won't be able to finish all this work before the meeting.
Yang Tongle: It's already past twelve. Let's grab some lunch first. After we eat, I'll help you finish these tasks.
Wang Yixue: You go ahead—I'll keep working for a bit longer. I need to send this to the company's email address before tomorrow's meeting.
Yang Tongle: Didn't you see the email? The manager isn't back yet, so the meeting's been postponed to next week.
Wang Yixue: That's a relief! Let's go eat.

课文 4

A few days ago, some colleagues from Shanghai visited Beijing. During dinner, they told me that many coworkers had recently moved to Shanghai for work and asked if I'd be willing to go there too. Here's how I feel about it: Right now, my husband and children are in Beijing. Liu Ming's job is very demanding, and Xiaoxue and Xiaoming are still young. If I were to work in another city, I'd have to leave them behind. While Shanghai might offer better career opportunities, life itself is just as important to me. I'm not willing to leave my family behind for work or study.

Lesson 12 这个季节天气变化很快

课文 1

Bai Jiayue: Ms. Wang, look! The trees along this street are in bloom.
Wang Yifei: Last week, I went boating in the park—the flowers there were blooming, too.
Bai Jiayue: The weather is so nice. I'd like to go boating in the park this afternoon.
Wang Yifei: Go ahead! It's a weekday, so there probably won't be many people.
Bai Jiayue: Do you have time? I'd like to go with you.
Wang Yifei: I have classes this afternoon, so I can't go too far.
Bai Jiayue: Then shall we go another day?
Wang Yifei: Sure—either tomorrow or the day after. I'll give you a call.

课文 2

Bai Jiayue: It was sunny just a moment ago. How did it suddenly get so windy?
Wang Yifei: I think the news said it's going to rain today.
Bai Jiayue: Really? I usually keep an umbrella in my bag, but I didn't bring it today.
Wang Yifei: I can lend you one—I have both an umbrella and a raincoat in my car.
Bai Jiayue: Thanks! I hope the weather clears up this afternoon.
Wang Yifei: The weather changes quickly at this time of year.
Bai Jiayue: It's already starting to rain—let's hurry and go.

课文 3

Bai Jiayue: You've been here for over a year now—have you gotten used to it?
Wang Yifei: I've gotten used to most things, but I'm still not quite used to the weather.
Bai Jiayue: Why? Don't you like the weather here?
Wang Yifei: I think the winters are too cold.
Bai Jiayue: Winter may be cold, but it's especially beautiful when it snows.
Wang Yifei: I like snow too. It used to snow often in Beijing, but I heard it only snowed once this year.
Bai Jiayue: I haven't kept up with Beijing's weather, but the news said that many places have had less snow this winter.

课文 4

It's been over a year since I left Beijing to work here. After living here for so long, I still prefer Beijing's four distinct seasons. Spring in Beijing is the most pleasant—it's neither too cold nor too hot. Summer days can be scorching, but evenings are pleasantly cool, which is why many people prefer going out after sunset. In autumn, the leaves turn vibrant shades of red and yellow, creating stunning views. Winter, however, is not only bitterly cold but also extremely windy, making it my least favorite season. Everyone has their own favorite season—which one do you like the most?

Lesson 13 我的新邻居来自英国

课文 1

Yang Tongle: Today's my treat—feel free to order anything you like!
Wang Yixue: Then I won't hold back. I've heard the fish at this restaurant is quite special.
Yang Tongle: That's right. Southern dishes are prepared differently from northern ones. Besides fish, is there anything else you'd like?
Colleague: I don't often eat southern food—why don't you decide?
